Local and General

T. J. Elliott was a business visitor to Calgary on Monday last.

Fred Barlow was a visitor to High River on Sunday last.

C. G. McRory, of Lethbridge, is spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. W. McRory.

Clarence Huser was in Calgary on Saturday last, to meet his sister who is home on a visit.

Get in your entries for the Fair which is on the 20th. The sooner you enter the less confusion there will be at the last.

The Secretary of the Fair is in receipt of the Medals won by local men at the Short Course School in February last. The lucky ones are Geo. Huser, Gold Medal in Horse Judging; Robt. Arnott, Gold Medal in Cattle Judging and Silver Medal in Horse Judging; and Dr. Tauger, Silver Medal in Cattle Judging.

WANTED.—Competent Girl, for General House Work.—Apply to Mrs. Price, Carstairs.

Beaver Dam and Crossfield had a friendly game of Baseball on Saturday evening. Crossfield won but apparently from the rooting they had but very few supporters in the crowd of spectators. The Umpire also came in for his share of criticism, but he luckily got away after the game without police protection.

Don't let your pigs run wild. McRory's have good Hog Fencing at 35c. per rod.

Attendance at the weekly shoot of the Gun Club was better last Thursday than any other time this season. Emil Wegener carried off the honors with a score of 20.

If you require to renew your old Loan or take out a new one call and see me, as I can save you money. I represent the N. of Scotland Can. Mortgage Co., The Canada Life, and others. CHAS. HULTGREN.

The Councilors of Crossfield are doing some very necessary work to the streets of the village.

Mr. James Ramsay has moved his family to Acme for the summer as that point is more central to his work.

Hay and water will be supplied free of charge on the grounds for those who wish to bring in their live stock the evening prior to the Fair. Good safe Karrals are being erected to hold them.

The Directors of the Fair will hold a Meeting in the Fire Hall on Saturday next.

The Rev. J. P. Barry, who has been attending the Conference at Medicine Hat during the past week, has been called east to Ontario through the serious illness of his father. In all probability this will keep him away from Crossfield the greater part of June.

Made Him Anxious

To a country town in the English Midlands there is a man who is so noted for his conversational abilities that his acquaintances avoid giving him unnecessary opportunities to talk.

One cold morning this man rode up to an hotel in the neighborhood just as the guests were finishing breakfast. He dismounted, walked in, saluted the landlord in his usual loud tones, and declared that he was so cold that he could hardly talk.

Just then a nervous traveler who was present stepped up to the landlord, and taking him by the coat, said:

Mr. L., have my bill brought as soon as possible.

What is the matter, my dear sir? inquired the anxious landlord. Has anything happened?

Nothing, nothing. Only I want to get away from here before that man thaws out.

He was a man who gave little and got much. Today, for instance, he had got a towel, and a shave, and he had got nothing at all. To be sure, he had his horse, but that was not the point.

Sore Back, No Fun, Cure It To-Day, Rub on "Nerviline"

It Will Cure Your Aching Back, Stop Your Suffering, Keep You Well

Back Sufferers, Read Below

"I am just so delighted with this comfort, Nerviline brought me that I want to talk about it all the time," writes J. C. Coughlan, of Saskatoon.

"For ages I have been subject to an aching, dragging feeling at the base of the spine. When attacks came on it made my whole body ache. It appeared as if I had taken cold and a soreness developed all through my muscular system. When in Winnipeg one day a friend spoke to me of Nerviline, and I bought a 50c bottle. That was the best half-dollar I ever spent. It did so much for me."

It is hard to convince some people of what a really good medicine can do, but there will be no sceptics after they try out Nerviline. I use it for everything now. It's fine for rheumatism and neuralgia and all sorts of muscular pain it cures quickly. But internally, if possible, Nerviline is even better. It cures a cramp in ten seconds, and, as for gas and upset or sour stomach, no more need exist. Nerviline. I think it should be kept in every home as a protection against sudden ills, and to cure ills that resist other treatments.

An old darkey was summoned before the judge for stealing a chicken. He was on hand early, and before the case was called, the judge, observing his presence, asked his name. My name is Johnnie, you honah, said the darkey. Are you defendant in this case? enquired the judge. No, sah, replied the darkey. Ise got-a lawyer to do my defense; Ise got-a gentleman what stole de chicken.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are the most delicate woman can undergo a course of Purgative Pills without fear of unpleasant consequences. They act on the whole system, and are entirely agreeable. No violent pains or purgings follow their use, as thousands of women have used them can testify. They are, therefore, strongly recommended to women, who are more prone to disorders of the digestive organs than men.

Mollie relied entirely upon the temperance of his diet for the re-establishment of his health. "What use do you make of your physician?" said the king to him one day. We chat together, sire, said the poet. He gives me his prescriptions; I never follow them; and so I get well.

MORE THAN EVER Increased Capacity for Mental Labor

Many former tea and coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of tea and coffee.

A Western woman writes: "I had drunk coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely demented; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation. (Yes, it is just as harmful because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee)."

The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became, less dependent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength."

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor, with less fatigue than ever before."

ASSOCIATE ADVERTISING CLUB

The Greatest Business Convention in History Beckons You to Baltimore

Every man who uses publicity in any form—every man with advertising or merchandising problems to solve—should be in Baltimore from the 15th to the 18th of June. The occasion is the 15th Annual Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. Ten thousand delegates and guests are expected to be present. They will come from all parts of the United States and Canada, and even from abroad. The general sessions, held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, will be addressed by the most progressive and successful American advertising and business men. Departmental and other special meetings will discuss in open forum the problems of various branches of the great business of advertising and selling merchandise of every description.

At this convention you will have an opportunity to hear of the great progress which is being made in efficiency in advertising—how advertising is being made more productive and profitable. You will hear from the lips of the leaders in the movement that what has been done and is to be done to check and punish those who are guilty of fraudulent or misleading advertising. The great educational movement, inaugurated by the Association and now being carried out by scores of clubs, will also be fully described by those in charge of the work.

Lay sermons by prominent advertising men will be delivered from the pulpit of Baltimore on Sunday, June 18th.

Don't fail to visit this great convention—send your advertising or sales manager if you cannot come personally. All will be welcome, whether members of advertising clubs or not. All will have an opportunity to hear the addresses and to participate in the splendid program of evening entertainments which Baltimore has provided.

Write now to the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, Convention Bureau, 1 North Calvert Street, Baltimore, Md., for the full program and accommodations, etc.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS USED FOR TEN YEARS

When one medicine is used in a home for a number of years it is the strongest testimony as to the value of that particular remedy. Thousands of mothers have been using no other medicine but Baby's Own Tablets for years—in fact many of them say they would have no other medicine in the house.

Concerning them Mrs. Jas. Keenan, of Ontario, says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for ten years and would not be without them as long as there are children in the house. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

JACK AND THE HAT

A Mistake That Ended Well

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Going down," called the operator, and Jack slid across the corridor and caught the car. As the door dropped behind him and the car crashed down an ascending car swooped upward and Jack had a glimpse of a familiar hat. A smart little hat it was of black and white, with a hint of rose color somewhere about it.

Of course Jack did not see all these details as the car passed him. He was recollecting the hat as he had last seen it upon the small, laughingly poked head of Laura Hansen. He had excellent reason to remember that hat, for he had nodded it at him as she dismissed him forever. It had all been about a very trivial matter. He had almost forgotten the quarrel now. Of course Laura was in the right. She had been provoking every always proving herself in the right. He imagined that he was quite broken hearted over his shattered romance, but so far he had managed to retain a most excellent appetite, although he avoided the opposite sex like a pestilence.

As to the quarrel, it arose from a man's not liking to have his dance dance modern dances with any one except himself. Laura did not see any reason why she should always prove herself in the right. She intended to go to a subscription ball, and he objected, saying he feared the company, not to speak of the dancing, might be very indelicate. He would not approve of the turkey trot, bunny hug or tango. Laura had pouted and fretted to such an extent that the result was a quarrel. She really cared very little about the dance, but was determined to make Jack bend to her will. Then, too, as she told him, she felt her pride insulted by his assuming that she would dance the modern dances in any except "proper form."

And now this confounded hat had flashed past him to remind him that the girl under it was no longer his sweetheart. He wondered if Laura had not forgiven him by this time—if he was not sorry. Perhaps if he met her casually—in the corridor of this building, for instance—she might betray her feelings.

Lingering in the vestibule, staring senselessly up at the directory on the marble wall, the impatient car came suddenly. He would go up to the twentieth floor again and perhaps meet her. He would walk all the way downstairs and perhaps see her in the lobby or in the elevator. Like many impulses, it was a foolish one. Nevertheless, he entered an elevator and went skyward.

At the top door he came and walked down the long deserted corridor to its end, came back and slowly descended the stairs. The corridor of the nineteenth floor was empty of life and he laughed at himself for his folly. She might have passed him in the lobby or in the elevator or in any of the corridors that glided up and down.

On the eighteenth floor he was rewarded for his folly. He had paced to the farthest end of the corridor and was coming back, approaching the elevators, when a door opened and the smart little hat came out. Jack Delafeld would know Laura's graceful figure anywhere. She always wore some shade of gray, and the tailor gown she had on now fitted to perfection.

She walked rapidly ahead of him, her heels tapping the polished floor, and he hastened to overtake her. The least she could do would be to throw him another of her killingly haughty glances, and as she had already broken his heart once it was immense now. He heard her and said eagerly, "Laura!"

She stopped suddenly, half turned, slipped on the glittering floor and sat down in an ignominious heap at his feet. She tilted back the slurring hat and turned a lively, indignant countenance toward him—the face of a perfect stranger!

"I beg—your pardon!" vociferated Jack humbly. "I really thought it was somebody else. Will you permit me to assist you?"

"No, thank you," she said lightly. "You look like a gentleman, so I added cuttiness."

Jack placed his hand on his head and jammed it down. "Of course I'll go if you want me to," he said, "only as I am responsible for your being down there, I should like to be assured that you are not injured. Permit me to repeat my apologies."

He went on down the corridor, calling himself all sorts of names and his assine behavior. He heard a slight snapping sound and an exclamation of pain and hastened back to where the girl sat on the floor. Her face was quite pale now.

"I believe I twisted my ankle when I went down," she murmured. "Would not a word Jack leaned over and lifted her to her feet. She waved and leaned against him.

"This is dreadful! It's the right foot," he said as he knelt on his knees. "I'll take a car home."

"Take a cab you mean," corrected Jack in a reproved tone. "I wish there were words enough to tell you how badly I feel about this," she slipped his walking stick into her hand, and, supporting her on the other side, they reached the elevator and went down to the lower floor.

"Accidents will happen," said the girl, with a faint smile. "I suppose anybody would do it was the fault of my high heels."

Jack Delafeld looked down at the sweet face so near his arm and marveled at the fluency of her clear skin, the soft brown of her eyes, with their sweeping dark lashes; the mist of black hair against her white forehead. She was the loveliest girl he had ever seen, and Laura Hansen's mere prettiness seemed artificial by comparison.

He beckoned a taxicab and placed her in it. "I hope you will permit me to inquire after the injured foot. I feel in a great measure responsible for the accident," he said, with an anxious Laura knitting his handsome brow. "You see, I thought I recognized the hat and believed it belonged to Miss Hansen. That is my only excuse for addressing you. I am pleadingly and did not understand the laughter that came into her eyes and the pink flush that returned to her cheeks."

"The hat did belong to Laura Hansen," she laughed. "So did the gown. So you cannot be blamed for recognizing it as hers. You, Laura Hansen is my cousin, and—well, I'm the country cousin, you see, and Laura is perfectly dear about giving me things to wear, and as I live in a little country town nobody knows that my clothes are not new ones."

Jack Delafeld was assailed with a multitude of strange emotions. That this girl to whom he felt strangely attracted should be Laura Hansen's cousin was hardly another one of those complications that life is always presenting. Suppose he wanted to see more of this girl, would her relationship to Laura Hansen make any difference? Would it make any difference to Laura—to the girl herself? But he was not so very far from being right.

"You wish to go to the Hansen's?" he asked. "Yes, please." "May I call and inquire after the injury?" he asked. "Certainly," she said cordially. "It is much better already."

He stepped back, lifted his hat and watched her depart with a little slinking at the heart. This feeling was different from any he had ever experienced before. He told himself that his engagement to Laura Hansen was a mere farce. Why, they had quarreled every time they met, and now he was engaged and nervously loved the outcome of a desperate flirtation. This was very different. So he assured himself while he stepped back, that he was not a fool. He held the man, dismissed him and then went to his club for dinner.

After dinner he was chagrined to find that he could not see the girl in the corridor he had met in the corridor before he didn't even know her name. As a matter of fact he found himself thinking entirely too much of his new acquaintance. The next day as the time drew near when he might call at the Hansen home and make inquiry for the sprained foot he was filled with a sense of unfilled obligation toward Laura Hansen.

When he had met her fair cousin in the corridor he had had it on the tip of his tongue to seek a reconciliation with Laura; so he felt it his duty to seek that reconciliation, and as Laura really cared for him in spite of his protests to the contrary then their broken engagement must be renewed. If, on the contrary, she refused to see him, then—then he must, he would, become better acquainted with her cousin.

"Miss Hansen is out, sir," said the servant. Jack called at the handsome residence. "Is her cousin in?" asked Jack hopefully.

"Miss Tyson? I will inquire, sir." Jack sat in the reception room and twiddled his hat on the top of his stick in more trepidation that he had ever felt before. When he heard the stony, dignified approach of the servant his heart throbbed noisily.

"Miss Tyson will see you, sir. She is in the library." Jack found her in the familiar room where he had once interviewed Laura's father on a matter of great importance. She was sitting in a big chair near the table, and a magazine lay open before her. If she was lovely in street clothes she was beautiful in the soft white house dress she wore with strings of coral beads around her throat.

"I am confined to my chair, you see," she said, with a gay little laugh. "The foot is much better, but I must not step out until tomorrow."

Jack sat and talked to Miss Tyson on the very limit of time allowed a polite call, and then he arose reluctantly. Before he called again he must have a final understanding with Laura. He owed that to his own conscience. It was Laura herself who solved this vexing question.

Just as he arose to go the door opened, and she entered, her hand tucked firmly in the arm of Lester Blake, now time Jack's dangerous rival and one evidently a successful one. A big diamond blazed on the third finger of Laura's ungloved hand, and the sight of it loosened something that was tightening Jack's throat.

Laura stood there an instant, taking in the scene, her countenance sitting by the table, Jack's gaze fixed on the girl's unconscious loveliness, and then the light that leaped into his eyes when he saw the engagement ring on Laura's finger. If she felt a pang of wounded vanity Laura's present happiness was sufficient to banish it.

"I ask your congratulations, Jack," she said sweetly. "And you may have mine some day."

The Shape of the Sky.

What is the apparent form of the vault of the sky? There is probably no one to whose mind has not come the hemisphere, with the zenith appearing as a distant star. At sea or in a flat country the seeming greater distance of the horizon is best shown by Professor J. M. Pernter in a study of this subject reaching the conclusion that the form of the vault in vertical section is that of the segment of a circle, the arc of which subtends at the center at an angle of the order of 40 degrees. If the reader will draw such a segment he may be surprised by the amount of flattening which is thus ascribed to the sky. From this optical illusion many curious effects arise. The sun, moon and stars, the circle of the sun and moon when near the horizon and the apparently oval forms of halos and coronas seen at low altitudes.

The Feelings of Uncle Joe.

Uncle Joe Cannon, one time speaker of the house of representatives, returned to Washington last fall after he had been elected to the senate to the house. One night he was approached at his home by a newspaper reporter who had been instructed to get from him an interview on the general subject of "the real meaning and benefits of defeat."

"I wish you would tell me," said the reporter, "what your feelings were when you knew that you had been defeated."

"Young man," said Cannon, "political defeat is too big a subject to discuss in an interview which is now drawing to its close with lightning-like rapidity."—Popular Magazine.

RUBY MINING.

Burma Provides World's Most Splendid Ruby Mines.

Regarded by the ancients as typical of what is to be found in the most precious in this material world of ours the ruby remains to-day in a foremost position among the varied colored gems.

While certain qualities of rubies are widely distributed and found in Burma, Siam, Ceylon, Afghanistan, India, Brazil, Australia and the United States, the countries of Burma, Siam and Ceylon are beyond question commercially the more important. Just as this is true there rests but little if any doubt that Upper Burma, the Mogok section, furnishes the finest and largest supply.

The mines may be divided into three classes, the "Twins" or pit, "Hmaw Dwin" or hillside working, and the "Loo-Dwin," the cavern or cave mine. The first of these mining systems is, together with the more modern way, well practiced in the valley bottom in dry weather. The bottoms are quite flat, and below an upper stratum of alluvial sand and a depth varying from 15 to 30 feet is found the bed of "byon," or ruby bearing soil, and a thicker layer of "byon" is then extracted and the "akhon," a substratum, reached.

As the alluvial sand and the soil is stiffer and small shales are sunk to a depth of 20 to 30 feet to the bed of "byon." In this manner, there have been some improvements in the general mining scheme, but it is in most part quite the same to-day as years ago, the washing of the "byon" being accomplished by placing the "byon" in a series of troughs. The running of the water gradually washes the lighter sand and the washed sand is taken out from time to time and reworked in fine meshed baskets.

During the wet season work in the "Twins" ceases and work in the "Hmaw Dwin" begins. The "Hmaw Dwin" are not mines in the strict sense of the word, but are cuttings in the hillside where the lighter sand is supposed to exist. The "byon" thus situated is of yellowish color, close and hard, but may be cut into and tunnelled and often is the resting place of other minerals, such as sapphires, topaz, corundum and mica.

The third class of mines, the "Loo-Dwin," are interesting and very productive, but for almost all the mountain ranges have a base of limestone covered with red clay or red soil. The ramifications of the caves are numerous, sometimes extending for miles, often very narrow and occasionally opening into large caverns.

It is a hazardous work for the miner crawling along the passageway, but it is well rewarded, for the "byon" is of sandy nature and the lighter sand is fewer they are of better quality and larger.

When the Burma Ruby Mines, Ltd., started to operate in 1909 much was expected from the application of new ideas and European skill, but the expectations were not realized for some time. Several new plans were tried without success until, until simple one was applied for working the alluvial deposit in the valleys by means of powerful pumps to raise the water from the pits, and the top soil having been discarded the stratum of "byon" was reached by means of trucks to rotary pans and a pulsator, as in the diamond mines of Kimberley.

Coded Descriptions.

A novel descriptive list with code letters, used by the British War Office applicants for employment at the Board of Trade Labor Exchanges in England, is furnished by a labor correspondent, who says it is looked upon, as a grievance by the London branches of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners in connection with the working of the Insurance Act (Part II).

When a man presents himself to sign the unemployed register, it is said, a clerk surveys him and jots down letters by the side of his name in accordance with the following code (which is furnished by the branch of the society): D, dry-haired; B, slightly deaf; C, very deaf; D, tidily dressed; E, untidily dressed; F, worn at heels; G, generous; H, frugal; I, frugal at bottom of trousers; J, insolent bearing; K, slouching gait; L, over-garment; M, sandy appearance; N, unkempt appearance; O, smart appearance; P, intelligent face.

An appeal is being made by the branches to petition the Board of Trade officials to discontinue the practice.

Sighted a Dead Whale.

The Cunard liner Campania, arriving at Queenstown last night, conveyed to all vessels a warning to beware of a huge dead whale floating in that vicinity. The whale, which was sighted by the liner, is said to be 80 feet in length and of bulk sufficient to cause serious damage to any ship that might strike it.

Cleaning Up Sydney.

In Australia the Lord Mayor of Sydney, acting by the request that his city is the "dirtyest in the southern hemisphere," has organized a "special force" of 100 gendarmes to capture citizens offending against the municipal bylaws for the preservation.

Your Parents.

These daughters were dressed in excellent taste. Their spending money in their elegant purses exceeded, I am certain, the salary of their father at their age. They knew a little boarding school French and German, and they were very well given in how to enter a drawing room and how to gush in the accepted society buttery fashion. One thing in their education had been sadly neglected. They seemed not to understand that parents demand courteous consideration at all times and that, above all things, there should be a polite treatment before others.

Well, these girls were entertaining friends and during the evening their mother came into the library to meet them. She really had a better idea of hospitality than her daughters, for she saw that the real business should meet all guests, even for a few minutes. "This little mother had never been in a 'finishing' school, and her grammar was the plain every-day grammar without the fluffy French phrase or up to date slang. I believe that she made some errors in grammar, for her daughters took the trouble to correct her before the guests, to the embarrassment of every one present except themselves. They did not seem to realize that all that corrections would be made before outsiders, and above all, they should be done kindly and gently.

The plain little dress did not suit the fashion plate ideas of the daughters of the house. When the dear little lady (I use the word lady in full faith) came in they drew at her as if she had been on fire and roughly straightened her blouse. Those daughters scolded their mother during a blouse not perfectly plain in the back. Rude is not the term I would apply.

She was corrected in one or two statements that she made, and a maid that the daughters would not dare to use to any other person. "No, don't say that," said one. "You have no right to give any opinion. What can an old person like you, with no experience in the world, know of this?" I wish that I could give you the rude manner that she used.

Now, I would warn every daughter who reads this little tale against falling into disrespectful ways toward her parents. Never be ashamed of the fact that your parents have not been "finished" or do not hold diplomas from colleges. You will find that the older generation have been very successful in money, building houses, making things possible for their children to acquire some of the more showy things that are necessary for a life of luxury and in their valuation of life.

Good honest principles, high ideals, honorable actions and right living count for more than anything else. You need never be ashamed of these attributes. I would suggest that you be proud of parents who have these qualities. No correction, no rudeness or disrespectful treatment will ever count for anything except against the children who forget that they, too, are not perfect.

Keep in mind always the days of patience, trial and self sacrifice that your parents have had to bear. They have generally respected you and have shown kindness and love for you. Surely you should give the same to them.

A Cure For Hunger.

The King of Italy was brought up splendidly by Queen Margherita. When he was a boy he used to come in days to lunch with the king and queen. One day the king was delayed, and he was a boy he used to come in days to lunch with the king and queen. The prince ventured to remark that he was hungry and couldn't wait any longer for his meal, crossing the room to a bookshelf, the Queen took a copy of Dante and laid it before him, saying, "If you are hungry, hunger will all go."—London Graphic.

A Chinese Idea.

Here is a Chinese idea of prosperity in a nation. When the sword is rusty, the plow bright, the prison empty, the taxes low, the people happy, the temple worn down and those of the law courts grow, when doctors do good, the people are content, and the men of letters drive in their own carriages, then the nation is well governed.

CROSSFIELD LOCAL &amp; GENERAL.

Jas. Walsh, our former citizen, and now of Calgary, was a visitor to town over the week end.

Mr. John Patterson left town on Monday morning for Toronto, where he intends making a brief stay.

The Pound Law was put in force on Wednesday, when the Pound Keeper gathered in two calves that were at large.

Mr. P. A. Copeman, of Ponoka, was in town a few days at the beginning of the week, he is thinking of coming to settle here and commence business as an auctioneer.

Messrs. Hanscom and Demers have started a poultry farm one-and-a-half miles south-west of Crossfield. They expect to have in the neighbourhood of 3,000 birds on the ranch within three weeks.

The next meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in the I.O.O.F. Hall, on Saturday, June 7th, at 3 p.m. It is hoped there will be a good attendance. All who have not yet joined are invited to do so. Come and bring your friends.

Don't forget that the Ladies' Aid of the United Churches, are serving lunch on the grounds on Fair Day, and would be glad if any of the ladies would contribute towards the same. For further information communicate with Mrs. Berry or Mrs. Morrow.

Yankee Robinson Circus and Wild West Show will visit Calgary on June 12th, there is to be a parade at 12 o'clock. In order that the country people can have as much time at home as possible, also that excursionists can have the opportunity of witnessing the immense circus and wild west parade of Yankee Robinson and Texas Bill, the event does not take place until high noon. Promptly at that time the parade moves, then all the outside free exhibitions are given at the show grounds.

"Made-in-Canada Train."

When the "Made-in-Canada" train left Moose Jaw, Sask., on the night of May 30th for Swift Current, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Macleod, Calgary, and intermediate points, the total attendance was almost 110,000. At Regina 14,000 visited the exhibition, and at Moose Jaw about 10,000. A feature of the evening stops is the moving picture exhibition which is shown on a canvas at the station premises, the lantern being operated through a window of the dining car. The train of 14 cars, 10 of which are occupied by exhibits of Canadian factory products and a large fruit exhibit, is in all respects superior to last years train, it has better decorative effects, and is more interesting throughout. The train is running exactly on schedule time. There is no charge to any part of the exhibition and everyone is invited.

The train will be in Crossfield on Monday morning, the 9th of June, from 8-30 to 10-30.

The interest of the school children in the visit of the "Made-in-Canada Train" to Crossfield, on Monday, June 9th, from 8-30 to 10-30 a.m., will be increased by the announcement of a prize competition in essay writing arranged by the advance representative of the train, who has just lately been in Calgary. For the two best essays written by the children on the subject "The Industries of Canada as seen on the 'Made-in-Canada Train,'" two valuable prizes will be given. The first is an edition of luxe de Begules Willson's "Canada," in the "Romance of Empire" series, and the second a good cloth binding of the same book. The prizes will be forwarded to the winners as soon as the two essays and names of the successful competitors reach the head office in Toronto.

Lived too Long

Pittsfield, in the Berkshire hills, had in the old days, like many another New England town, a number of men and women who were called character-ers. One of these was Bill Brown, a man unfortunately addicted to drink and frequently intoxicated for days at a time.

On one occasion he went into the shop of the local hatter, Mr. Smith, and asked for the best beaver he had. Mr. Smith produced the desired article saying, as he took the money: That beaver will last a man a lifetime.

Bill went proudly down the main street with his fine beaver on his head and immediately celebrated the event with a protracted delirium.

When he recovered he returned to the shop with a most discreditable hat.

Look here, I thought you said this here beaver would last me a lifetime. So it would, growled Mr. Smith, if you had died when you ought to.

ZAM-BUK CURED HIS ECZEMA

Mr. James McComb, of Thornton, Ont., writes: "For eight months I suffered from eczema and could get nothing to give me relief. I heard of several cases where good results had followed the use of Zam-Buk and decided to give this remedy a trial. Within three days I felt much better, and within two weeks the sores were entirely cured."

For all skin diseases, eruptions, boils, scalp sores, etc., Zam-Buk is without equal. It is just as good for cuts, burns, bruises, blood-poison, piles, varicose ulcers, bad leg, inflamed sores, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

Have you tried Zam-Buk Soap? 25c. tablet.

Success does not spoil everybody. The other day a young Swiss ate fourteen hard boiled eggs, shells and all. But to his friends he is still the same simple, unaffected man.

AN OLD SETTLER FINDS QUICK RELIEF

CHAS. MARSHALL CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mrs. Marshall Tells How Her Husband Suffered, and of His Speedy Recovery When He Used The Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Parkinson, Alberta, Ont. (Special)—Living far from doctors and with doctors not within easy reach, many of the settlers have found Dodd's Kidney Pills an inestimable blessing. One of these is Mr. Charles Marshall, Sr., whose recovery from a severe case of kidney disease has recently been the cause of much satisfaction to his family and friends.

"My husband was suffering very much with his back and legs," Mrs. Marshall says, speaking of her husband's cure. "He went to see the doctor, and he told him he had urinary trouble, but he did not seem to get any better."

"Then I sent for some Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since taking them, he has no more pain in his back or legs, and his other troubles are all gone."

"I am indeed thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for my husband, and I hope other sufferers from kidney disease will benefit by his experience, and use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Urinary troubles are caused by diseased kidneys. So are backache, rheumatism, lumbago, and heart disease. The natural remedy is to cure the kidneys by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A Lofly Character

Our idea of a lofly character is one who can smoke a bad cigar and not hate the famous man it is named after.

I want a license to marry the best girl in the world, said the young man.

The clerk nodded smilingly and replied: Sure. That makes the 1,500 licenses for that girl this season.

Tired and Weak Nerves Exhausted

The feelings of fatigue and languor which overcome so many people at this season of the year tell of the exhausted condition of the nerves. It is impossible to keep up the action of the heart and the vitality of the nerves when the blood is thin and watery, and this is why nearly everybody needs tonic treatment in the spring.

Some of the symptoms are restlessness, purposeless activity, insomnia, absent-mindedness, tired gait, lack of ambition and enthusiasm, headache and neuritic pains, dyspepsia, and feelings of languor and depression. Monotony of work and mental overstrain or worry shake the nervous system, as does also the strenuousness of modern life, whether in the business or social world.

More and more men and women are obliged to seek the assistance of such concentrated foods as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore vitality to the tired and worn-out nerves. Such treatment is necessary, because distention of the nerves do not right themselves. As nerve force runs low the digestive system falls in to extract the necessary nutrition from the food. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies in condensed form the ingredients required, and restores health.

A little patience is necessary in treating diseases of the nerves, and real help to restore strength. You can be sure -- lasting beneficial results when you use

CALGARY EXHIBITION

Many of the residents of this portion of the province are completing arrangements to attend the Calgary Exhibition in July, and from the information which is in hand there will be something doing all the time. From an exhibition point of view there is assurance of a very large display in all departments. The live stock breeders are preparing their animals for the show ring, and the reputation which Alberta has received as a stock country will be again amply demonstrated.

District exhibits and the individual displays made by some of the most successful farmers in the province will provide some very keen competitions for the premier honors. It is to be hoped that this portion of the country will be represented, as the publicity that would be derived by having Crossfield carry off some of the premier honors would be of incalculable value.

Visitors at the Calgary Fair this year will be treated to one of the best arranged list of attractions which this exhibition has ever presented. Music by the 91st Highlanders Band of Hamilton, and some of the best western bands in addition to the famous Titus Grand Opera Quartette, will appeal to the lovers of melody. Two diving horses, one of which takes a daring plunge into a tank of water with a lady on its back, will furnish a thrill which will be remembered. Ramona Ortiz does things on a slender steel wire that the ordinary person would not attempt on a six foot side walk. These are only a couple of the nine big acts which will be imported for the exhibition, and in addition there are several gorgeous spectacles which will be prepared by westerners.

The Bombardment of Alexandria will be presented as the principal feature in a pyrotechnic display which will excel anything attempted in the west at any fair. In addition to the fireworks there will be on one night of the fair a spectacle of a real house in the centre of the track catching fire, and a turnout of Calgary's crack motor fire apparatus.

The racing programme provides $22,000 in prizes for saddle and harness horses, and taken as a whole those who spend their holidays in Calgary at fair time will not want for either entertainment or instruction.

Baseball.

The fourth game of the Baseball League with Olds will be played at Crossfield, on Thursday, the 12th of June, at 6:30 p.m. sharp.

It is hoped that there will be a good crowd show up to cheer the home team to victory.

Some time ago, in the court of a certain Scottish burgh, a man was charged with the theft of a pig. The worthy Bailie, in sentencing the prisoner, remarked that pig stealing in the parish had lately been too rife, and finished his peroration thus:—"And unless I make an example of you it's very certain none of us will be safe."
